Strategies Employed

The Fund will focus on achieving its objective by investing a minimum of 70% of the Fund's NAV in fixed income instruments such as debentures, money market instruments and deposits with Financial Institutions. We will combine a top-down and bottom-up investment approach to identify investment opportunities. Macroeconomic trends and market analysis are the important considerations in deriving the top-down perspective on interest rate outlook, fixed income markets and currency movements. For its bottom-up approach, we would conduct analysis on the issuers to assess its ability to service its debt obligations. The selection will depend largely on its quality where the respective issuers display strong ability to meet their financial obligations, healthy cash-flow, the collateral type, value, claims priority as well as offer highest safety for timely payment of interest and principal.

Market Review

Throughout the period under review, the trajectory of US equities remained notably positive. The S&P 500 index exhibited a steady upward trend, reflecting a market buoyed by a confluence of factors. December witnessed a robust 2.80% increase in the S&P 500, a testament to growing investor confidence bolstered by mounting speculation that the US Federal Reserve would halt its ongoing rate-hike cycle. This optimism extended into January, with the index surging by 1.60%, reaching new all-time highs, underpinned by strong economic indicators such as GDP growth and nonfarm payrolls. February saw a continuation of this upward trajectory, with the S&P 500 recording a remarkable 5.20% surge, setting yet another all-time high. This sustained positive momentum underscored a market environment characterized by resilience and optimism.

Central to the narrative shaping US equities during this period was the stance of the US Federal Reserve. In December 2023, Fed Chair Jerome Powell's articulation of a dovish outlook on interest rates provided a significant tailwind to market sentiment. The Federal Open Market Committee's decision to maintain benchmark interest rates within a targeted range of 5.25%-5.50%, coupled with indications of potential rate cuts in 2024, contributed to a sense of reassurance among investors. However, January witnessed a nuanced shift in the Fed's rhetoric, as policymakers opted to keep rates unchanged, citing the necessity for more conclusive evidence of inflationary pressures abating before considering further monetary accommodation. This adjustment in tone led to a marginal increase in US Treasury yields, signaling a recalibration of market expectations. February brought forth a blend of optimism and caution, with the core Personal Consumption Expenditures (PCE) index hinting at the potential easing of price pressures, offering respite to investors. Nonetheless, minutes from the January FOMC meeting revealed a more hawkish stance among members, fostering upward pressure on Treasury yields and prompting a reassessment of rate cut projections.

Across global markets, the sentiment was mixed but generally positive throughout the December to February period. Asian markets, as reflected by the MSCI Asia ex-Japan index, experienced fluctuations driven by a myriad of factors. December witnessed notable gains fueled by optimism surrounding the Federal Reserve's dovish pivot and a corresponding weakening of the US dollar. However, January brought with it a degree of volatility, characterized by a decline in market performance amidst reduced expectations of imminent rate cuts and higher bond yields. February saw a resurgence in market optimism, particularly in China, buoyed by stimulus measures enacted by the People's Bank of China (PBoC), aimed at bolstering economic growth. Anticipation surrounding China's annual parliamentary meeting in March added to the positive sentiment, with investors eagerly awaiting signals regarding economic targets and potential stimulus measures.

In Malaysia, market dynamics were influenced by both domestic and international factors. The benchmark KLCI exhibited a mixed performance but ultimately closed higher over the period. Political developments, including a significant Cabinet reshuffle and the signing of an MOU for a Johor-Singapore Special Economic Zone, contributed to market sentiment, underscoring the interplay between politics and economics in shaping investor perceptions. Despite these positive developments, Malaysia's GDP growth for the fourth quarter of 2023 fell short of expectations, signaling challenges within key sectors of the economy. In the bond market, the 10-year Malaysian Government Securities (MGS) yield fluctuated but remained relatively stable, aligning with a neutral stance maintained by Bank Negara Malaysia. These domestic market dynamics underscored the importance of both domestic policy initiatives and global economic trends in shaping Malaysia's investment landscape.

Investment Outlook

We maintain our positive outlook for fixed income asset class in 2024, as global growth is expected to moderate due to restrictive monetary policies and rising geopolitical tension. We expect volatility to persist, but at a tighter range compared to 2023. Inflation expectations have peaked, but inflationary environment may persist due to elevated commodity prices. The second half of 2024 may present higher noise as political uncertainties increase on the back of large number of elections especially the US Presidential election in November 2024.

Domestically, moderating growth and contained inflation continued to be supportive of the fixed income market. A lower government bond supply profile in 2024 due to fiscal consolidation is also a positive factor to the market. Domestic liquidity is ample with demand from duration coming from pension funds and lifers. Headline inflation may face upward pressure as the proposed targeted subsidies mechanism.
