The fund's primary strategy is to invest in Quality Compounders at reasonable valuations. Quality Compounders are businesses with a strong moat, high return on capital, and a healthy growth trajectory.

Market Review

The S&P 500 index experienced gains of approximately 3% in USD terms from March 1, 2025 to May 31, 2025.

Multiple factors drove the S&P 500's weakness during this period. The introduction of sweeping tariffs by President Trump on Liberation Day sparked widespread panic selling, which triggered fears of potential recession and rising inflation. However, Trump's subsequent decision to delay the tariffs' implementation until July 2025 provided some relief as market saw a reversal.

The Asia ex-Japan (AxJ) equity markets, as measured by the MSCI Asia ex-Japan Index, saw a 7% gain in USD terms from March 1, 2025 to May 31, 2025.

Within AxJ markets, India was the strongest performer as India was the strongest performer because its equity market benefited from improving economic stability and renewed stimulus optimism. The Reserve Bank of India's latest monetary easing was expected to bolster bank lending and drive growth. Additionally, political stability ahead of the national elections and sustained foreign inflows further boosted market sentiment.

Investment Outlook

Several key macroeconomic factors are expected to influence global equity markets. The primary factor is the trajectory of inflation data in developed countries, particularly the U.S. Changes in U.S. labour and inflation data will determine the Federal Funds Rate and overall financial conditions in the U.S., which will significantly impact global financial conditions.

China's economic health also has broad implications for the global economy, particularly for Asian economies due to close trade linkages with China. The Chinese government has gradually increased its monetary and fiscal stimulus.

Global geopolitical developments are another important driver of financial markets. Donald Trump's tariff, immigration, and government spending policies would affect U.S. businesses and global trade activities.

These key issues will be closely monitored, and any material developments will impact the portfolio's construction for the remainder of 2025. Our portfolio positioning does incorporate risk mitigation strategies to better withstand potential changes in macroeconomic conditions.
